So What Do I Do When?...
Business Conundrums, Dilemmas, and Policies in Private Practice

Stephen Honor, Ph.D. and Anthony Pantaleno, Ph.D.
Friday, April 4, 2014 7:15 – 9:15pm

ABOUT THE PRESENTATION

Both veteran and recently-licensed psychologists in the world of private practice are faced with many non-clinical decisions regarding policies to be set for patients, solving atypical business dilemmas, and both developing and revising basic practice rules such as fees, billing issues, joining networks or not, and generating a steady stream of referrals. This workshop will be an informal opportunity to learn about two very different practice structures, to share questions, discussion, and commentary, and to think about changes for the future of your practice.

Learning Objectives:

Participants will be able to:

1. Describe the basic issues involved in creating and updating a private practice
2. Recognize differences in how these issues are resolved by individual practitioners
3. Understand appropriate credential for areas of specialization
4. Recognize significance of ethical issues
5. Discuss non-clinical resolutions for the atypical practice problems
6. Create a network of colleagues with who practice questions may be shared

Assessment questions:

1. Did the presenters provide a thorough overview of their practices?

2. Were the most important practice issues presented and discussed?

3. Do you have awareness of when to and where to refer for areas outside of your own area of expertise?

4. Did you walk away with a feeling that there may be more than one way to resolve a difficult business issue?

5. Was there sufficient time for you to present your individual questions?

6. Did you learn anything that might cause you to change one of your current business practices?